Ken Claps Along

Nan had a clap club in class. Ken was glad to be in it. "We will sing, clap, and slap a leg," said Nan. The club got set. Clap, clap, slap!

But Ken's claps were after the rest. It was a mess, and the club had to stop. It was a flop. Ken was glum. "I can not keep up," he said.

Then Ken saw the black clock on the wall. Click, click, click! "I can clap with the clock!" said Ken. The club got set to sing again. Clap, slap, clap!

Ken's claps fit each click of the clock. He did not miss one. It was not a flop at all. "You did it, Ken!" said Nan. Ken had a big grin.
