Ted the fox ran in the grass. Then he stopped. In the grass was the end of a long pink string.

"What is this?" said Ted. He could not think what it was. "I will track it."

The string ran past a big trunk. It ran under a plank. Then it ran up a bank. Ted ran up the bank, huffing and puffing.

At the top, the string hung from a bell. Ted yanked the string. The bell rang and rang!

Then the gang ran up the bank. Sam ran up first.

"You rang my lunch bell!" said Sam with a grin. "Thank you, Ted. Now the gang can eat. Sit and eat with us!"

"So that is what the pink string is for," said Ted.

He winked at Sam and sat down with the gang for a big lunch.
